

OPUS™

Maximising Education's Learning Spaces

46% of respondents are less than satisfied with communications infrastructure in an environment when modernisation could reduce costs, improve facilities and make way for digital transformation

Education Estates teams focus on the funding, design, build, management and maintenance of schools, colleges and universities across the UK. Investment in estates is of high value to enriching the experience of both students and staff, giving the institution a sense of identity and pride. But this is no small task. Education's estates need to respond to changes in student expectations, teaching methods, post pandemic and the fast-changing digital age.

EDUCATION

Want Efficient Estates?

Through managing the estate, education can achieve its goals to make the efficiency savings they so urgently need. Not only will this lead to revenue savings and better services, it can also bring wider economic growth. Estates teams need to be able to exchange information between departments, internally and externally. They need collaborative tools that are rooted in simplicity and seamlessness to make their jobs easier.

Less than 50% were confident that their telephone infrastructure wasn't a barrier to estate rationalisation in supporting flexible remote working.
