Procuring for Social Value

HOUSING

46% of respondents are less than satisfied with communications infrastructure in an environment when modernisation could reduce costs, improve facilities and make way for digital transformation.

It's not just about cost; it's about the best balance of cost. It's about quality and sustainability. It's about value for money. As housing association procurement teams struggle with shrinking budgets and calls for more efficiency, they need to maximise collaboration and improve relationships with suppliers, stakeholders and tenants. But what are the best tools to meet the changing needs of Housing's Procurement and how can Finance teams keep up with the fast-evolving digital age in a post pandemic world?

Making Finance Function

It all starts with communication. Communication within any successful finance department needs to flow easily and tick like clockwork. Communication platforms can make conversations easier to manage and decisions quicker to make. Finance teams need an all-inclusive communications platform that will catapult productivity and sustainability, providing more meaningful relationships.

So what are the solutions? Unified Communications

Unified communications is a suite of technologies that can powerfully support the effective exchange of information, centralising within the management of all communication channels within the Housing Sector. It lets users communicate in flexible and intuitive ways, and is well known for increasing productivity and improving collaboration.

What are the Benefits of Unified Communications for Finance?

- Maximised value for money for all transactions
- Flexible and rapid management of internal communications
